

chewy

New Kitten Must-Haves Checklist

- |                                               |                                                |
|-----------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Kitten food          | <input type="checkbox"/> Collar and ID tag     |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Food and water bowls | <input type="checkbox"/> Nail clipper          |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Cat treats           | <input type="checkbox"/> Cat toys              |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Cat bed              | <input type="checkbox"/> Cat scratchers        |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Cat carrier          | <input type="checkbox"/> Cat tree              |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Litter box           | <input type="checkbox"/> Dental products       |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Litter               | <input type="checkbox"/> Flea and tick control |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Litter scoop         | <input type="checkbox"/> Heartworm prevention  |

Kitten-Proofing Your Home Checklist

Kitten-proofing creates a secure environment for your curious little ball of fluff. Here's a checklist for kitten-proofing your home:

- Hide electrical cords
They should be covered with cord covers or hidden away.
- Hide valuables and breakables
Don't place breakables anywhere they could easily be knocked or pushed over.
- Get rid of toxic house plants
Check all your plants against the ASPCA's Toxic Plant List to confirm they won't make your cat sick if they nibble on them.
- Secure furniture
Make sure furniture isn't going to be knocked over if your kitten jumps or climbs on it.
- Add baby locks
Consider adding baby locks on cabinets, especially those that contain cleaning chemicals.
- Close toilet lids
Curious kittens can slip and fall in and potentially drown.
- Put human food away
Some human food can be toxic or, at the very least, give them a tummy ache.
- Check all screens and doors
Ensure they're secure and don't have holes your cat could squeeze through.
- Block access to any appliances
This includes blenders, water heaters, and furnaces.

KITTEN NAME: _____

WEEK OF: _____

AMOUNT: _____

Kitten Feeding Schedule

	MORNING	AFTERNOON	NIGHT	TREATS
SUNDAY
MONDAY
TUESDAY
WEDNESDAY
THURSDAY
FRIDAY
SATURDAY

How much should I feed my kitten?

It depends on your kitten's age and weight. Follow the feeding chart on your brand of kitten food and the advice of your vet.

chewy Kitten Milestones

1-3 Weeks

- Opens eyes
- Attempts first steps

3-5 Weeks

- Starts walking
- Starts using litter box
- Baby teeth start to come in
- Learning to groom
- Ears are up and triangular

6-8 Weeks

- Socializing
- First vet visit and vaccinations
- Should have all baby teeth
- Becomes more independent

9-12 Weeks

- Eating solid food

3-6 Months

- Able to be spayed or neutered

6-8 Months

- Ready for regular flea, tick, and heartworm protection

8-12 Months

- Need teeth brushed regularly
- Reached adult size

Kitten Milestones Tracker

Kittens are full of wonder and surprise as they learn about their bodies and how to be a cat. From start to finish, each of the kitten stages of development bring something interesting and fun to watch as they grow. Track their milestones below.

MILESTONE TRACKER

KITTEN FIRSTS	DATE

Kitten's First Vet Visit Checklist

The day is upon you: You'll be taking your kitten to the vet soon. What should you bring?

- Filled-out forms provided by your vet
- All documents you received with your kitten
- List of important questions or concerns you may have
- Notes on amount and brand of food and treats you offer at home
- Current medications or supplements
- Collar and ID tag
- Microchip information
- Cat treats to reward good behavior
- Stool sample, as fresh as possible
- Cat carrier
- Their favorite blanket or toy that smells like home